

Editorial

It gives us a pleasure to bring out third issue of Indian Journal of Maternal-Fetal & Neonatal Medicine. There is an overwhelming response from contributors, editorial board members, reviewers and readers. This Journal acts as a window to showcase and project the clinical research work done by OB/GYN community and Neonatologists. The Journal mirrors their active interests and pursuits.

Women have the power to produce a newborn and nurture him till he become an ideal man and serve the society and the nation. Therefore, the health of nation is hidden in the health of women. The aim of our journal is to highlight innovative ideas for the advancements of women's health, which will continue to motivate us to reach new horizons. Let us not confine ourselves only as organ healers or the technocrats or the surgeons with the skill of midwifery.

Fetus is being conferred individual status and human rights. Fetus is bestowed with legal and moral rights. In obstetric Care, the promotion and protection of both the pregnant mother and her Fetus are foremost.

Science has its genesis in research and no scientific programme can sustain until it is replenished by new ideas and findings. Research leads to better understanding, innovations and applications. We are committed to disseminate recent information in this fast progressing field. Contributions of research articles and comments from esteem readers will enable us to achieve this goal.

I conclude with comment from Gurudev Rabindranath Tagore:

Life should be like a lamp
Where the potentiality of light
Is far greater in quantity than
What appears as a flame?

Women symbolise the flame.
